

CHEF MARC OSIER, from the Coliseum Pool & Grill at the Resort at Pelican Hill, prepares lunch in a private villa.

Ultimate private dining

Negotiate the deal in comfort and luxury.

BY KIMBERLY PORRAZZO

WHEN YOUR C-LEVEL MEETING requires an upscale setting, security and über privacy, your own executive conference room might not be enough. Although it may be equipped with state-of-the-art technology and perhaps even its own kitchen, the office can be a draining setting for everyone when it comes to long negotiations. When the meeting is that important, reserve a villa at Pelican Hill [pelicanhill.com].

The Villas, in an exclusive gated enclave of the five-star Resort at Pelican Hill in Newport Beach, offers privacy in an inspired setting with a retreat-style atmosphere.

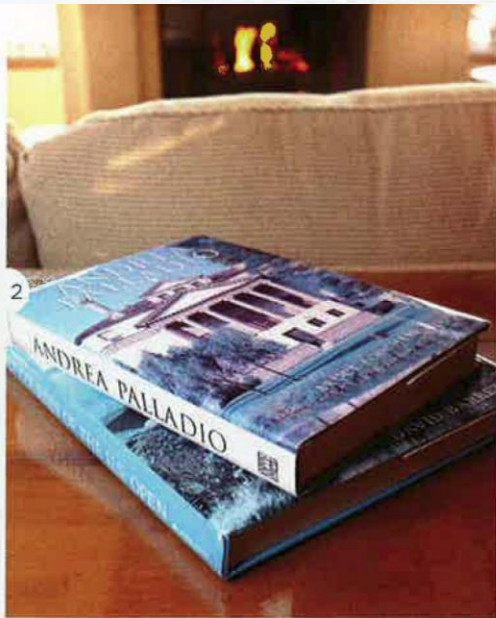

Get down to business in the comfortably appointed living room. Your personal butler can assist with Wi-Fi and business-presentation tools. When it's time for a break, you'll find a reprieve on the terrace, where the expansive ocean view and refreshing breezes will energize the group for another round of discussion.

The resort's private chef will prepare a gourmet luncheon right in the villa's kitchen. If time allows, build a cooking lesson into the agenda.

When the day is done and the deal is signed, treat your guests to dinner at Andrea to celebrate.

1. OPT FOR A light and luscious luncheon prepared by one of Pelican Hill's renowned chefs.
2. AN ELEGANT FOUNDATION: The Villas, like the Resort at Pelican Hill, were created in the architectural and design style of Italian master Andrea Palladio - books and details about his work can be found throughout the property.
3. BREATHTAKING VISTAS: The Villas overlook the golf course and the Pacific Ocean beyond. If your meeting lasts until the twilight hours, a stunning sunset awaits.
